HAA 2300: Image, Art, Thing in the Renaissance

Thursdays, 2:30-5:20, Frick 104

Professor Christopher Nygren
cnygren@pitt.edu
Frick 118a
Office Hours: Wednesdays, 2-4pm (or by appointment)

The stakes of studying Early Modern art history have come into high relief in the last twenty years or so. Numerous scholars have pointed to the “moment of 1500” as a definitive rupture in the development of Western aesthetics, the moment at which the march toward “the modern” finally slips into gear. Renaissance art has been investigated as evincing the hypostasis between different paradigms of picture-making: “image” and “art” (Belting), “substitution” and “performance” (Nagel and Wood), or “representation” and “agency” (Gell/Latour). These are the novel paradigms that art history brings to bear upon the Early Modern period; yet they often leave art historians skeptical for the materials that they neglect. At the same time the social sciences have begun to manifest an intensified concern with the material world and the “things” it encompasses. This New Materialist emphasis on object-based-ontologies has blurred traditional boundaries between “things” like subject and object, intention and agency, art and gift, as well as broader disciplinary distinctions. This seminar, then, will read art historical literature against the recent foundational works of Bruno Latour, Jane Bennett, Bill Brown, and Web Keane – among others – in an effort to appreciate how things – both “images” and “art” – helped mediate social relationship in the Early Modern world and how this complicates the image-art dyad that currently dominates the field.

Required Texts
Leon Battista Alberti, On Painting (trans. Grayson)

Recommended Texts
Augustine, On Christian Doctrine (Dover)
Gabriele Paleotti, On Sacred Images (Getty)
Lorenzo Valla, Dialectical Disputations, v. 1 (I Tatti Library)
Nicholas of Cusa, Selected Writings (Paulist).

Course Requirements

1. Class attendance and participation.
2. Eight brief (approx. 1 page, typed and double-spaced) responses to each week’s readings (Weeks 2–13). You get to chose which weeks you would like to write a response. These are emphatically not meant to be summaries of the arguments set forth in the reading, but rather a reflection on some aspect of the reading that struck you as noteworthy, meriting further investigation, etc. You are encouraged to use these response papers to connect the readings to your own sub-discipline. These response papers will be read out loud in class to stimulate and guide discussions each week. These should be emailed to the professor by 9am the morning of class.

3. In-class presentation

4. A final independent presentation and formal written essay, approximately 15-20 pages, on a topic of your choice in consultation with the professor. All students are required to make an appointment to discuss their project with the professor during week 6 or week 7 of the class in order to allow ample time to develop an independent bibliography.

In-Class Presentations

Over the course of the semester, participants will occasionally work in groups of two or three to prepare and deliver brief (20–30 minute) presentations of key works, theories, themes, and issues related to that week’s topic and readings. Details to follow.

Final Presentation

Students should prepare a conference style paper, no longer than 20 minutes, with a carefully integrated digital presentation component. Practice your presentations in advance in order to regulate the timing. “Spectators” will be expected to offer cogent, insightful questions and comments, in the spirit of helping the presenter to further develop their thinking and writing on this topic.

Final Project

Following the presentation, each participant will submit a formal written essay, in the form of a Word or PDF document, emailed to the professor by 11:59pm EST on Thursday, April 28th. These papers should be approximately 15-20 pages with Chicago Style footnotes and bibliography. All students should begin meeting individually with the professor early in the semester to discuss the shape of the final research project, and should also set up an appointment with Kate Joranson, the Fine Arts Librarian, to talk with her about your research interests.

Formatting Guidelines for Written Work

All art history essays should be double-spaced, in 12-point Times New Roman or a similar font, and with 1” margins. They should include Chicago Style footnotes, a separate Chicago Style bibliography, and fully captioned illustrations of all relevant figures, each on a separate page (with some exceptions) and following the bibliography. When in doubt, refer to the Chicago Manual of Style, available online through PittCat.

University-Wide Policies

Academic Integrity: Cheating or plagiarism on any exam or assignment will not be tolerated. Simply put, plagiarism is using someone else's words as if they are your own. If you ever use someone else's text word for word in your own writing, you must enclose those words in quotation marks and cite the source; if you paraphrase from a source, you must cite it as well. If you try to pass off someone else's writing or research as your own in any exam or assignment, or otherwise cheat in the course, you will receive an F grade in the course and you will be reported to the dean's office for disciplinary action pursuant to the School's Academic Integrity Code (see http://www.as.pitt.edu/fac/policies/academic-integrity).

Disability Accommodation: If you have a disability for which you are or may be requesting an accommodation, you must contact me and the Office of Disability Resources and Services (http://www.studentaffairs.pitt.edu/drswelcome; 140 William Pitt Union, (412) 648-7890], within the first two to three weeks of the term. DRS will verify your disability and determine reasonable accommodations for this course.

Email Policy: Each student is issued a University e-mail address (username@pitt.edu) upon admittance. This e-mail address will be used by the University for official communication with students. Students are expected to read e-mail sent to this account on a regular basis. Failure to read and react to University communications in a timely manner does not absolve the student from knowing and complying with the content of the communications. The University provides an e-mail forwarding service that allows students to read their email via other service providers (e.g. Hotmail, AOL, Yahoo). Students who choose to forward their e-mail from their pitt.edu address to another address do so at their own risk. If e-mail is lost as a result of forwarding, it does not absolve the student from responding to official communications sent to their University e-mail address. To forward e-mail sent to your University account, go to http://accounts.pitt.edu, log into your account, click on Edit Forwarding Addresses, and follow the instructions on the page. Be sure to log out of your account when you have finished. (For the full E-mail Communication Policy, go to www.bc.pitt.edu/policies/policy/09/09-10-01.html).

Recording Classroom Sessions: To ensure the free and open discussion of ideas, students may not record classroom lectures, discussion and/or activities without the advance written permission of the instructor, and any such recording properly approved in advance can be used solely for the student’s own private use.
